New rules may allow Australian police to detain “conspiracy theorists”

The Australian state is rolling out increasingly fascist laws, when will people finally say enough is enough?

Police arresting a protester in Melbourne. Video shows him being hit with a car and stamped on while on the ground. (James Ross/Herald Courier)

New rules passing in the Australian state of Victoria could see “conspiracy theorists” and those “suspected by health authorities of being likely to spread the virus” detained in quarantine centres, according to The Age

The rules are amendments being added to the Omnibus (Emergency Measures) Bill, which was first passed back in April.

The proposed detention would last “for the period reasonably necessary to eliminate or reduce a serious risk to public health”.

To translate that from bureaucrat into English: it means as for long as they want, or can get away with.

Legislation with this kind of vague verbiage is always a red flag, but then Victoria is currently over-flowing with warning signs of this kind.

VICTORIA – THE WORLD’S FASCIST TEST RUN?

Maybe you haven’t been following exactly how bad things are getting in Australia – and most especially Victoria – but they have essentially aggressively seized their opportunity to create a fascist micro-state. A social Petri dish, in which to culture some tyranny.

They have declared both a “state of emergency” AND a “state of disaster” for a disease which has killed fewer than a thousand people in 9 months across the entire country.

For a sense of perspective, in 2018 over three times as many people died of influenza, and the same number again committed suicide.

As of right now Australia has just 16 cases of coronavirus classified as “severe”.

And yet, among other highly authoritarian regulations in place, Victoria currently has:

- A curfew, everybody must be home by 9pm and remain there until 5am.
- Special work permits for “essential workers”, which must be carried at all times and presented to any law enforcement officer that asks.
- Police check points on the roads – “leaving a restricted area” is now a criminal offense.
- “Indefinitely suspended” all jury trials – all criminal proceedings are now bench trials (they tried that in Scotland, too)
- A 60 minute limit for anyone leaving their home to exercise, and a rule forbidding people from going more than 5km (3.1 miles) from their home.
- Instituted a mandatory masks for anyone leaving the house for any reason.

Though notionally intended to be “temporary measures” which only lasted six weeks, they have already extended that timeline for a further six months. There is some planned “loosening” of these restrictions, but with such vague and mutable conditions it’s unlikely this “new normal” is going away.

Indeed the “emergency” is so comparatively minor that this precedent means almost any future event can be designated a “disaster” or “emergency”, and used as excuse to impose authoritarian social controls.

THE EVER QUOTABLE DANIEL ANDREWS

The Victorian Premier, Daniel Andrews has been a quote machine during this pandemic. When challenged on the draconian nature of the new rules Andrews said [our emphasis]:

“ The most logical, the most prudent thing to do, is to simply accept the fact that we have a need for rules ... they’re not about individual liberty, they’re about public health.”

When asked about the 74 protesters arrested in Melbourne this past weekend, he said [again..our emphasis]:

“ It’s not smart, it’s not right...it’s not the time for protest...No one has the right to make choices like that, that potentially puts at risk everything we are working towards.”

Andrews is currently subject to a vote of no confidence from the opposition.

ENTHUSIASTIC POLICE BRUTALITY

The Victorian police have certainly launched into their new mandates with gusto. Raiding the homes of people who share certain facebook posts before arresting them for “incitement” and violently detaining those who weren’t wearing masks in public.

Oh, they are also detaining people at checkpoints for no reason at all, and hitting protesters with their cars putting them in hospital. Some people are being arrested for refusing to identify themselves or “driving on a highway” or “refusing to follow orders”.

The situation in Victoria is terrible, but it’s not much worse than here in the UK, or the US or many other countries around the world. People need to resist it, non compliance and non-conformity have never been more important.

We’re in a grip of a fascism pilot scheme, and the only way to stop it is to see it and say it.

An update on the situation in Victoria. These chilling amendments to the Omnibus Bill were passed in the Victorian Parliament in the Legislative Council last night by 39 votes to 21 votes.

They now go to the Upper House, and if they're passed there, these amendments will become law.

Where the fu are all the human rights lawyers and supposed champions of free speech? Right now I feel pretty sick.

Victoria is now in a dark place and so many are silent, or even worse, supporting this.

This well known website (at least in my circle of like-minded folk), has just published this excellent, economically worded summary, which places this world record smashing fear campaign into it's proper and realistic perspective, which the obedient masked zombies would do well to read and understand, then adopt. If they did, the whole thing would be over in a couple of days and we could go back to normal life and enjoy the FREEDOM we all took for granted again.

And of course, NEVER fall for the same ruse, ever again.

GET OVER IT!

I'm not being xenophobic or warmongering, but the Australian state of Victoria sounds like Wuhan, however, it also strangely resembles the way the US dealt with American Muslims after 9/11. So in effect, the Australian Government is treating their citizenry as if they're terrorists. Is the Australian government purposely trying to emulate China/US. They say emulation is the highest form of compliment, however, copying totalitarian methods to isolate a virus which DOESN'T affect 95% of the population demonstrates this authoritarianism is more about social control and has little to do with infectious disease.

Here's something particularly scary, the government's proposed detention would last "for a period reasonably necessary to eliminate or reduce a serious risk to public health." This sounds like the US rendition program. The government snatches citizens off the street and can indefinitely detain them. As a side note, there's probably 55 prisoners still held captive in Guantanamo Bay—the Afghan war started in 2001.

And how about police checkpoints on roads "leaving restricted areas." That sounds pretty creepy—checkpoints are used throughout Palestine to control and psychologically subjugate the population who are living in little more than an "open air prison."

What do you think of this—a 60 minute limit for anyone leaving their house to exercise, and a rule forbidding people from going more than 3.1 miles from their home. How does the police control each person's workout. What happens if you take a ninety minute walk—are you sentenced to the firing squad.

The Victorian Premier, Daniel Andrews says: "Simply accept the fact that we have a need for rules ... they're not about individual liberty, they're about public health." There you have it—it's not about INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY it's about health. So it's been determined by bureaucrats your individual liberty is a mere bourgeois obsession.....get over it.

Some good news. My Son is back, complete with his Dinghy and Outboard Motor..

He is looking fine but obviously a bit hungry and thin.

My wife (his mum) has fed him as best she could in 10 minutes but he is dying to see his wife and kids.

I can understand that.

I asked him has he seen The Fraud Squad yet. He wa ready to go and meet them

Yesterday.

He said The Top IT guy wasn't available, and they cancelled the meeting – possibly Next week if he hasn't got COVID.

Mum and Dad (me) were completely Delighted to see him.

We have survived very stormy seas, very recently in his Sailing Boat,,, and we want to do it Again.

But Beaucracy First, if The City of London Police can get their act together, and keep THEIR Appontment.

My Son and his Business has Nothing to Hide.

He is the Most Honest person I know.

He is Not Political.

He is just a Plumber, who supplies Extremely Fast Bandwith in Data Centres,some in The City of London.

His customers from all over the world have to pay for the services he provides, or he can't pay his bills.

The UK has got The Biggest Fastest Pipe in The World.

My son has got people watching almost live TV, in some of the most obscure places in the world.

It's mainly kids stuff, in languages that neither he nor I can understand – a bit like Facebook for under 10's in hungrawli

Mum and Dad us Grandparents are so Proud of Him.

He hasn't done anything wrong and he is not doing anyone over.

I have never known such an honest person.

He doesn't take no shit though if you try and steal his stuff.

Glad he is back.

Prince Harry is O.K, At least he has got a sense of humour – Dressed himself as a NAZI for a laugh when he was a teen, and his Brother may be O.K. too. I forget his name, but his missus seems O.K., and I do appreciate anyone who did his job flying helicopters over the seas of The UK rescuing people in distress – and saving their lives. I like people like that.

Not all the stuff about The Royal family is made up.

Some of them are good people, and would do anything to save lives.

A really crap job to be born into, but what can they do?

The vital thing is self determination: to resist, refuse to comply and most importantly to spread the word. There are billions of citizens, a few hundred elite driving this "brave new world", and thousands of governments and politicians who have already been "bought" by the multi-billionaires. We can, and we must beat them and subsequently hold them to account.

Poland: COVID sceptics decry measures in Warsaw protest

Sep 12, 2020

Ruptly

Two to three thousand COVID-19 sceptics protested in Warsaw on Saturday against the restrictions imposed on citizens by the government amid the ongoing pandemic. The crowd walked through the city chanting slogans like: "Stop the false pandemic" and "Take off your mask". They blamed media for allegedly lying about the health crisis in the country and around the world. Police forces gave instructions to organisers but did not intervene during the protest. No arrests have been reported.

On the fascist government you elected, because they were full of race hate and homophobia, turned out to be criminals and hate merchants, what a surprise!..... Soon there will be 'no freedom zones' along with the 'no gay' zones as proposed by your polish fascist government, good, you deserve to lose your freedom as you chose hate and persecution of vulnerable minorities. The sooner you are kicked out of Europe the better.

See it and say it : <I>.

As soon as you have a personal biography, an independent or agentic mind, or an infinitely free personality – it is just a matter of time and reification before the fascist cops show up.

When you write descriptions that generate the split cognitive structure of the letter <I>: you are writing the Omnibus (Emergency Measures) Act subject by predicate by subject and line by line.

The metaphysical world we live in is proto-fascist: a bipolarisation brought to you by the communal and nihilistic Absolute ritualistic abuse of the verb <to be>.

And anyone who pointed this out – from the Buddha to Baudrillard – is a ...[...]

[...] I'll let you fill that bit in.

The real is relational; there is no permanent identity; the metaphysical conception of such and its superimposition on inferior peoples and the land causes suffering. A lot of suffering. These are the Three Marks of Existence: but no, the permanent letter <I> is more real.

It's happening in the UK: looks like we'll be in lockdown again within the fortnight. With possibly more emergency powers here. And still no one can identify the cause. No one actually forced us into duality. We certainly weren't born in causal and intentional chains. We were educated into a previously existing intentional infrastucture and reflexive psycho-social dispositive behaviours that produced us as we reproduced them ...as we merrily and descriptively forged the determinative State and the Chains of Own-Being ...as a co-emergence. Anyone who has pointed to this very end has been marginalised ...to say the least.

Another end to the world is at least possible if enough people see through the modernist illusion of the Mutually Assumed Dualism of the letter <I>. And its co-production of the State as a reflexivity.

The First Nation Aboriginals lived on the coastal strip for 50,000 years. If you discount early settler colonial projective accounts of savagery, war, and cannibalism: reasonably peaceably it seems. We came along and in little more than 200 years you've got this. The story is the same throughout Western settler colonialism ...the genocides, the ongoing land-grabs. It's theirs. Give it back. And live by absorbing their Lore – not ours – if we want to survive.

Global fascism: brought to you by the psycho-lexical mapping of superiority and global narcissism – mapped to the letter <I> – in exterminatory mappings of the Holy Trinity of Life (ours not theirs), free will Liberty (our negative Rights not theirs), and the blissful pursuit of Private Properties (our estates not theirs), mediated by capital (our social capitals not their spiritual one).

And still people cannot see how we got here.

The symbolism of many photos and narratives, like the photo in this article, is that of revolting muscle man with tattoos, or a plain housewife with children, etc. It signifies mediocre intelligence, the rule of the masses, against superious intelligence, the elites, or oligarchy, the two sharpening their swords, the battle of two fighting mean dogs, the latter being superior in intelligence, will likely win.

He has got more balls than any of us,

Nice Bloke – completely OTT and uses working class language a lot, but I never found him offensive. I even sent him some money, when his dog wasn't to well, and the police were beating his flat door down, with his 16 year old daughter and young baby videoing it in terror cos he posted a photo of Prince Charles chasing a kid. He probably photoshopped it, but it was really funny##

Having the front door of your house smashed to shit, by the Romford? based Essex Police isn't. Especially after The Court case they do it again – and this was about 10 years ago.

The jury let him off, though he was most definitely guilty of a lot of swaering, and not showing that much respect, though the interview of him with the police, which is daughter managed to keep on going, does demonstrate, that he doesn't really blame the police either -they were just doing their job and no one was physically injured, and people like me sent him a few quid to help pay for the damage to his flat, He's a builder, so probably got some mates to help fix it cheap.

I hope he is well

I don't think this is true. He much prefers old bags, not the most Beautiful Princess, any man could ever have. She used to go to the gym right opposite to where I worked, and take her kids to The English National Ballet and sit in the cheap seats near the fron, with my wife and our two kids, We notice these things.

I know such girls are difficult to deal with – they are competetely honest flighty, and flirty a bit like Goldie Hawn in her younger days..I mean what man wouldn't fall in love with Princess Diana. All the Girls did too.

She was Our Princess

They killed her. The jury returned the verdict "Unlawful Killing"

The BBC never reported the Truth even then. They are DESPICABLE. I really do not like them, and I know some of the people who resigned and used to work for them. I am almost certain, the guy who released the 9/11 BBC Jane Standley Tapes 4 years after, where she said the Soloman Buildings WTC7 had collapsed too -over 20 minutes before they did, with it still standing there in the background of the live TV shoot (I think she is innocent) has been back to a party in my house and garden. A little bloke – he didn't admit it. A very dangerous thing to do. I he is stil working there – good luck to him.

The BBC Archives especially the Music OGWT etc are a Complete Treasure.

Spivey takes too much time trying to sound like he has balls by using as much gratuitous bad language as possible. Less is more. By the tenth time in a second paragraph it's become less humorous and more an exercise in translating what he's trying to say.

He wants to be the outrageous enfant terrible of the alt movement with his shaved head and blanket of tattoos. A self-styled 50 something teenager with anger problems.

It's a shame really. When he isn't being a dickhead, he tackles some good issues from the right angle. But he lacks self discipline and trusts whoever he suspects agrees with his own view without ever checking enough sources..

There's a fair point in there somewhere...

Where I live, there are a few spectacularly unattractive women with green hair, as well as some young men with "Threatening Individual" practically tattooed all over their body language, whom the media can never resist when it comes to reporting on a protest of some sort.

It's laughably common and predictable nowadays. As you say, it is supposed to signify, subliminally, "low intelligence", but it's reached the point where we now recognize these individuals instantly, as well as the purpose they serve.

Is there some way other nations can intervene? If this was a US enemy state we'd be bringing democracy to the Australians as we speak.

Certainly no nation deserves America bringing "democracy" to them, but is there an actual, helpful intervention that another nation can do on behalf of Australia? Even though I understand this tyranny is part of a UN plan, if some nation brought this up at the UN it could be embarrassing and maybe he'd have to back off.

Also, UK Column has pointed out that some police are going through "special" training which changes them into people capable of doing what we see in Australia. Does anyone know how to break up that kind of mind conditioning? If so, say it so people might be able to break through to others when confronted by authorities who have likely been brainwashed.

Relax, God.

I sometimes get the "awaiting approval" message too, and simply by waiting a while I can see my comments get through because they are not personally offensive to anyone.

I don't feel 'censored', because I understand that some of the words I use could, in other circumstances, be used abusively.

It just takes a little patience to let the algorithm get over its conniption fit, then all will be well...

Just a FYI for other potential "thought criminals." I just went to the book publisher's website (Chelsea Green Publishing) to look at the book description and I put a copy in my "cart" and saved it as a purchase to complete later today. I then went to check my Outlook email account through Google Chrome and found I was suddenly was locked out. I had been in my Outlook account only two minutes earlier. Now suddenly there was no way to access it. Nothing helped, not even restarting my computer.

This has never happened before where all I can get when I attempt to log in through Google Chrome to Outlook is an error message. For better or worse I can however, still get to my Outlook account through the Safari browser, just no longer through Google Chrome, the browser I used to search for the covid book.

Fascinating. The punishment for "thought crime" certainly seems to be both swift and unmerciful these days I must say. One of the benefits of AI no doubt. Maybe with 5-G/6-G in the future the powers that be can just do a retinal scan, AI can determine that I'm – "thinking about" – buying the forbidden book, and they can just crash my whole system before I ever complete the purchase. Ah, the wonders of technology.

Of course clearly there is now simply no doubt that I will in fact purchase this book!

SALLY,

I've been afraid, almost since the start of this COVID in March, and it certainly wasn't caused by Off-Guradian. Even Off-G probably thought I was mad, cos like 9/11, I knew things then, were going to get considerably worse, and they did. I was convinced we were going to run out of food, and run out of beer, and run out of bloody everything.

I still do, so I started growing my own food and brewing my own beer.

The potatoes taste much better than we buy in the supermarkets, just not got enough of them yet.

Should be O.K. with the beer though. Our next door neighbour grows loads of hops, and just leaves them to rot, and they have now spread to my garden.

Do you wear a mask? My wife does, and I am not impressed.

FEAR has both positive and negative effects.

The positive effect, has caused me to get off my arse and start digging, lose some weight and get fitter.

The negative effect is that I am afraid of meeting most of my brainwashed friends wearing masks, or even writing stuff on Facebook, cos then they complain to my wife, and then she gives me a hard time – stop upsetting my friends. She knows its a load of bollocks too, but likes keeping the peace.

Unlike me, she is very diplomatic. I tend to say what I think, especially after a drink.

Fortunately I was completely sober, during my last two recent interactions with the Police.

I know, they know its a load of bollocks too. Overheard "Sorry love, but we have got to be seen to be doing our job (what they tell us to do)"

The police are being tracked and monitored too. They don't know who by – the monitor will appear just like any other member of the public. She won't be wearing a Police Badge.

Is that what you do?

Tony

Now most would say you're a mental case. But I've got a solution for you instead...

Kratom. Go to the store—health food store, vape store, tobacco store—or order online. Kratom is legal most everywhere. Get some Maeng Da Kratom, or Bali, or Borneo. Take about 3 to 5 grams your first dose. You should start feeling it within a half-hour. It will take away your anxiety. You'll be able to function like a rational person. It's all-natural—just crushed up leaves from Asian trees. Maybe then you'll stop throwing up in the comment sections where real people want to discuss, compliment, and argue with one another;)

Think about it – you keep changing your name but your posts are still autospammed.

Whst does that tell you?

Think carefully...

Yes, that’s right. It’s not your name being ‘censored’, it’s the Akismet anti-spam picking up your numerous repeat posts under different names and assuming you are a spambot.

You are simply defeating yourself doing this. You’re competing with software not a human moderator.

As I’ve advised many times your best solution is to pick one name and post with that – and DON’T repeat post the same comment while awaiting approval. It doesn’t speed anything up and only makes you look even spammier to Akismet, thus exacerbating your problem.

By all means continue ignoring this advice if you want. It’s your time you’re wasting. 🙄 FEAR has done a bad day's work if its only result is to numb or paralyze. Or, the fear of fear: the result is that we ignore, or avoid, or deny the obvious.

But FEAR, or just its adrenaline, has done its job quite right if we are all "scared straight" by this.

Fear is just great if it awakens!

Fear, through a long line of habitual responses over years will actually retrain people even not to perceive a growing threat. Just look at majority USA.!

Having the right kind of fear preached at us and wrestling with its angst is a better outcome than "fearless" extinction. Even a dinosaur can do that.

There is currently only one geopolitical game in town. It is the mass roll-out of US imperial power, flanked by the roll-out of it's Corporate monopoly machine. Like East India Company was, they are the service providers to empire who provide the surveillance and the looted income to support the suppression of allies, vassal powers and rival economies.

So all recent events must been seen in that context. That is what Covid is, that is what Global warming is, that is what Brexit was. All part of a campaign to Make America Great Again, strategically and economically.

Whilst the CIA will probably have some Agent Provocateur's present to instigate violence in an attempt to discredit a peaceful protest, the CIA / MI6 / British Crown have had almost complete control over The Australian Government for a considerable time.

If they don't like who the current Australian Prime Minister is, they simply get rid of him, like they did with Gough Whitlam in 1975. Aussies should have complained more – it wasn't very democratic.

So whilst the CIA, are undoubtedly in control of many such Colour Revolutions, such as in The Ukraine (it didn't work too well did it?), they are hardly going to kick one off in Australia, though they may kick your head in if you go there to protest.

Still you should, if you want this to end.

There were too many independent political voices and people who were getting in the way of the 'grand plan', and they needed to be removed.

They will overturn the democracy which we didn't even know we had, because the fascists kept telling us we didn't have one.

But you'll soon realise how important democracy was, when it is gone and we are being told what to do by Generals.

Not exactly on topic but concerns the hotel quarantine issue which is at the heart of the Victorian excuse for a lockdown.

Why has not one journalist, commentator or political party asked the obvious question: Who was it made the original decision to quarantine people in high-rise, high priced hotels. AT the moment the private security guards are getting lots of heat but nobody is questioning the original decision to use hotels.

1. This decision was bound to be public health disaster. It was the Diamond Princess on land...the hotels air conditioning system ensured that they acted as incubators of the disease. The hotels were virus factories. If they were really concerned about health high quality tents inside the many unused football and sports grounds would have ensured no transmission of the Virus. It is estimated that one has less than one twentieth the chance of catching the disease outside compared to inside a building. There was a report from China early in the casademic that 99% of all infections were incurred inside a building or on public transport. Insisting on masks outside is just straight out madness. It protects no one.

2. The decision to put people up at five star hotels reeks of corruption. All the small tourists operators, motels, caravan parks etc were left out to dry and surprise! surprise! the huge multinational hotel chains...Marriot etc get a giant taxpayer handout and later a guaranteed cash infusion from those thousands of Australians unlucky enough to have to pay the huge fees required (remember these are first class hotels so thousands of dollars a week) in order to get back into their own country. Graft and corruption on a giant scale. I wonder who got the payoff.

Follow the money! Why doesn't at least somebody start digging into this?

Like much I have read this year (though I did think I probably had COVID in January – like a mild flu), I don't believe this story.

The reason I don't believe it, is that there is no evidence whatsoever, that COVID (if it even exists) is any more dangerous in medical terms than any other flu. There are no more deaths than any other flu. In fact the death rate was lower, than happens during nearly every flu season, until The Lockdown was imposed.

The Lockdown itself, caused far more deaths, due to multiple reasons, which included almost all hospitals effectively being closed down, for anything other than what was suspected to be COVID.

COVID is a very dangerous Psychological Mind Virus. Even believing you have got it will make you ill...but it is all in the mind. If you are old and ill, and you believe you are going to die soon, then you probably will.

Your best chance of survival, is to be convinced it is a load of bollocks and refuse to wear a face mask, even though you may get your head kicked in.

It sets a good example.

Tony, I started with a persistent cough at the end of last October. It was so bad, that I usually ended one of the coughing 'fits' with a bout of retching, or, occasionally passing out due to oxygen starvation. This went on for four months, until early February, when my GP's advice of taking an anti-inflammatory finally calmed down my inflamed respiratory tract. I had a few days off work here and there during the four months due to severe fatigue. I've had the flu many times, but I've never had anything like this.

Now, other than high blood pressure controlled by medication, I'm a fit and healthy 58 yo, with a very active life. I also run a company which is involved in a lot of site work, and involves lots of site visits to lots of sites by myself. Throughout the four months of my illness, I lost count of the number of (mostly young) people I met on sites who, on hearing my cough, said to me: "Oh, you've got it too. What the hell is it? I just can't shake it off." and variations thereof.

This is a new virus, no question. It's almost certainly man-made. It was never meant to take out huge numbers of us. To do so, there was a risk it would have also taken out many of the elites behind this scam.

The real damage is going to be done by the vaccines. That was always the plan.

I got it in February too, not as bad as you, it only lasted a few weeks, but I am very fit normally. I know many people who also had it in the early months of this year. It was already widespread when they locked down, which is perhaps why they locked down to extend it's life. I think the vaccine will fail, it is already falling apart. They are failing, the empire is not what it once was.

estimating isn't really good enough. you have to have actual proof there is a virus, it causes illness and is contagious. just making estimates based on how much fresh air there is in the building proves nothing. quarantining people under covid terror on a football pitch, hotel or ship is quite capable of making them sick all on it's own without any virus as is evidenced by the Diamond Princess crime. what they need to do is stfu with this bs about "covid-19" and the "deadly virus".

It is almost like foreign leaders, allies of the USA, have been asked by the Democratic party arm of the US deep state to string-out the virus with the aim of bringing down Trump.

It may be a bogus reason, I think they really want to wreck foreign economies ready for US corporate take-over, but our politicians are so dumb they would be happy to fall in line with with those they consider to be the next US regime. The UK is the most determined to their masters, and destroy their own country for the US elites, like they did with Brexit.

The deep state, of course, fears any president who is not their puppet.

Inciting irrational fears of evil jews, capitalists and western imperialists certainly served leftist dictators extremely well over the last century or so. But less so the estimated 120m politically incorrect citizens killed by their own tyrannical governments in that time, or the millions of Uigyr muslims and Tibetans today who are still suffering and dying in Xi Jinpeng's concentration camps. Facing gang rape, forced sterilisation, torture, murder and organ harvesting, their plight dwarfs that of Melbourne or anywhere else in the democratic world. But our corporate media and 'progressive' politicians like Merkel, Macron and Biden entirely ignore the communist horror, being much more interested in manufacturing mass fears of climate crisis, white racism and nationalism, covid19, and of course Orange Man Bad. Beware of the videos and stop circulating them. Most are street theatre intended to frighten the public into compliance. The 'arrests' follow a similar pattern. A very steady camera hand, interaction between a 'cop' and innocent member of the public, usually nice clothes and haircuts, a 'bystander' shouts to intervene. Not all are fake but a stuntman showed how the 'cop car running into the member of the public' was a fake – guy has lower back padding, hand on car bonnet and jump back, then disengage forward, fall and roll (camera cuts out the roll). The 77th and their equivalents aren't good directors and the players literally are bad actors. We think we are exposing shocking tactics but we are doing their job for them. Object: frighten people and make them hate the police who, on the whole, are good people (at the moment).

This is the Military Industrial Complex that President Dwight Eisenhower warned about. Like his contemporary Aldous Huxley, Eisenhower was very much a part of that complex, along with the intelligence agencies that they both helped promote.

The effective suspension of the legislature, habeas corpus and even legal rights such as trial by jury, the use of martial law and curfew, the commandeering of the press and media — all this points to the military nature of those behind the seizure of power.

Likewise the replacement of civilian policing with military policing is a wartime measure in the absence of what we think of as war (but it is a possible precursor to war; conventional or hybrid; and it may be war on the population as enemy).

If military law replaces legislative and judicial law, as it has, then the military is in the driving seat. I don't see any argument.

Under no definition, medical or linguistic, can you quarantine the whole population. Quarantine is the sheltering and quartering of the sick. What we are seeing is not quarantine, it's house imprisonment and, if you break it, the explicit threat of internment.

It ain't quarantine however much they use the word.

The threat of indefinite detention (as per Ardern) is internment.

The test at the heart of these measures is not scientific thus it is arbitrary.

You may even be detained on suspicion of being infected — arrest on suspicion.

None of these measures requires a warrant nor does it appear to be subject to judicial review.

These are precisely the military measures that proved so controversial at the height of the Irish Troubles.

Will we have our Bloody Sunday too?

What do we do if someone refuses to be tested, well they can't. If someone in one of our facilities refuses to get tested, they have to keep staying. You either get your test done and make sure you are cleared or we will keep you in a facility longer

— Jacinda Ardern, PM

Silicon Valley was created by the Defense Department. The leading tech giants and technologies were either created by the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency or are closely related. Yes, even cuddly Jeffrey Preston Jorgenson-Gise (aka Bezos) is deeply connected to DARPA.

There is a technocracy, but it is not independent as it was in the 1930s. It is part of the security state. Behavioural training and psychological profiling been used to promote an amoral and compliant cadre in both the military and the civil service I refer you to Obama's culling of the U.S. military leadership and the extensive use of "training" by Common Purpose in the UK military to weed out non-believers and promote cult-like conformity.

Transgender rights have become a test of compliance. With all due respect to individuals, the envelope has been pushed to the point where civil servants, teachers and police must choose where their loyalty lies: society as a whole or the re-definition of arcane rules and word forms to protect particular "communities".

This is not about individual rights at all but simply a way of weeding out those who object that $2+2=5$.

If it were just about bathrooms we'd make them all unisex. But no... you must defend the right of a man who "identifies" as a woman to go into the women's bathroom. There is your proof that this is not about the right to take a pee but the "reframing" of perception into a new and improved "common purpose sense".

Diversity training has been used in the same way. If it were about the harmonious co-existence of workers it could be handled in a dozen different ways. Instead it creates the opposite of harmony. In the UK, police officers returned from "diversity training" with violence and anger management problems according to their very own spouses.

The violence of police in Victoria is plain as day. You don't need to believe me to see that those police have clearly had their perception altered in a deep and damaging way.

The militarization of police goes deeper than personal protection equipment, armoured vehicles and weaponry. They have received military training, with all the psychological reframing that involves. Trained, that is, by the military.

Clearly this is not about Army Surplus. We were told it was just about using up some spare equipment from Afghanistan and Iraq. That's obviously a lie.

Fusion is the honest answer: Fusion was developed in the Vietnam war

What was the Phoenix Program? From the perspective of a Bureaucrat like Director of Central Intelligence Bill Colby it was merely an attempt to coordinate a number of pre-existing programs. Phoenix sought to provide cooperation between various Vietnamese and American agencies so that they could coordinate their war on the Vietnamese people. Sort of like the Department of Homeland Security or more precisely its fusion centers where military, police, and intelligence agencies pool information on the American people.

Launched as a central component of last year's National Security and Capability Review (NSCR), Fusion Doctrine is Mark Sedwill's National Security Council (NSC) initiative to fuse capabilities, across 'economic, security, social and the rest', to deliver strategy-led design of policy and planning.

Unveiling a "fusion doctrine" for tackling national security threats, May says in the foreword of the review that every part of government and its agencies will have a part to play.

If Fusion is framed in the context of national security, who runs Fusion and gives the orders? If you believe it's the civilian who sits at the top of the Department of Homeland Security or Britain's National Security Council, I've got a bridge to sell you. Military intelligence is the answer, or a combination of its equally authoritarian rival agencies.

We all know the military needs an enemy. Even more so, its paymaster, the weapons industry, aka the Military Industrial Complex, requires an enemy to justify those sales. And what enemy could be more profitable and enduring than the entire people?

Eisenhower was the one who changed the role of the CIA from intelligence to covert military operations. He spoke his warning about the MIC with forked tongue. Sixty years later, he would be very satisfied with the outcome.

Once learned, never forgotten.

Eisenhower killed millions of ordinary Germans after 1945 and yet airlifted thousands of senior SS and Nazi officials into the U.S. where they took positions in government, law enforcement, science, the military and, of course intelligence where the OSS effectively merged with the SS effecting a reverse takeover of the newly-formed CIA.

He very publicly punished ordinary Germans while incorporating the Nazi bureaucracy into the post-war American and European and Latin American government structures. That was a psychological operation. The consequences we are dealing with now: the same U.S. Foundations like Rockefeller, the same U.S.-German corporations, the same eugenics and medical martial law...

It's true. They did it to test psychological compliance to a new set of rules around social conformity and "new norms" by publicly ostracizing and shaming outliers so they can effectively get rid of people who question change or even basic logic.

It also has another benefit. It divides the left – right further into the liberal social values set vs Christian individualistic conservatives.

They are trying to stoke civil unrest through several Astro turf movements simultaneously.

They've been learning how to limit free speech by shaming people on social media around issues like gender identity, sexuality and race, in order to pivot to Covid, Health, biometric monitoring and pre-crime or pre-contagion.

The military-tech-medical establishment have been testing the system using AI to see how it would play, when they instigated the covi-scam.

So instead of being labeled "racists" or "homophobic", anyone denying covid is being framed as a far right lunatic anti-vaxxer who is putting the world in danger through their "irresponsible or sociopathic" actions.

This framing of reasonable objections, questions and protests gets twisted by the press and social influencers into an us vs them narrative so there's no objection from the masses when the arrests, detentions and forced vaccinations occur.

It's divide and conquer.

"We all know the military needs an enemy". Sorry, it's not so simple: enemies do exist, national defence is necessary. Ask the Poles from 1939, as their nation was brutally occupied and divided up by communists and Nazis (my father escaped death by the Soviets by walking across occupied Europe to the UK. He once told me their rule was much bloodier than that of the Nazis). But we can agree that the infamous military industrial complex has fostered war and hate for profit, and seized control of much of the US state in order to do so. That gigantic corruption is a key reason why Americans voted for Trump and his promise to drain the swamp. Trump is the DC elite's hated enemy:

President Trump 9.9.20: "I'm not saying the military's in love with me. The soldiers are. The top people in the Pentagon probably aren't because they want to do nothing but fight wars so all of those companies that make the bombs and make the planes and make everything else stay happy.”

<https://twitter.com/TVNewsHQ/status/1303037246875017216>

“Trump has broken a 39-year-old streak of American Presidents either starting a war or bringing the United States into an international armed conflict. The last president to avoid doing so was Peace Prize laureate Jimmy Carter,” Tybring-Gjedde wrote. “I’m not a big Trump supporter,” Tybring-Gjedde said. “The committee should look at the facts and judge him on the facts — not on the way he behaves sometimes. The people who have received the Peace Prize in recent years have done much less than Donald Trump. For example, Barack Obama did nothing.”

Eisenhower was definitely no hero and his warning about the military-industrial complex was self-interested. During his presidency, the MIC was an emerging rival to the Eastern Establishment-Wall Street-CIA faction he represented. He had no problem approving CIA coups in Iran and Guatemala because Dulles et al. were his people.

Eisenhower didn't do Scheiße. He golfed for 8 years, and let the Nazis he supposedly defeated, take over the CIA et al., and whatever else they could. Nihilism? Seems.

Excuse me if that sounds harsh, may God have Mercy on the man, but it's said for an important and enduring truth.

I see Van Morrison has released protest songs about COVID being bollocks. What's interesting is that, as far as I've read, the MSM has not explicitly condemned him. Maybe they're thinking, "Hmm this guy's popular. Maybe we better tread carefully."

What the hell is actually going on? Have people lost their minds? I have literally never felt so alone in my life. Why does no one seem to mind that we can't travel anymore? That our kids have no more school? That our governments (I live in Turkey) are now requiring us to have digital IDs, and people in some of our cities have to wear special colored arm bands if they test positive? We can no longer buy plane tickets or bus tickets without a tracing app. Our borders are now and have been sealed since late March (I'm losing track), And on top of it all, the World Health Org opened a new bureau here in Istanbul 3 weeks ago, and is now I guess directing its business from the ground here. Help!

Like Con-911 softened up the West for the oil wars — the Coalition of the Killing against Iraq, Sudan, Libya and Syria; and softened up the West for The Patriot Act spying on the public, softened up the West for debt slavery via Quantitative Easing. The people of the West (which includes Turkey, Australia and Israel) have the Long March still ahead of us. Anglo Zionazi Capitalist bloodsuckers in Turkey, as you say are heavily armed; as are AZC enforcers in other NATZO countries. Victoria is in deep cow poo now. Those behind this agenda chose Australia, and especially Victoria very well. They knew exactly where to target first.

If these amendments to the Omnibus Bill pass, I'd almost be expecting a knock on my door.

Those involved in anti lockdown groups have been receiving visits from police doing 'welfare checks' concerned the person visited may be 'suicidal' judging by Facebook posts they've made.

Several people have reported this including a young woman a couple of nights ago. People felt that these visits are meant as warnings.

I had a visit from plod nearly 4 weeks ago claiming there had been reports of screaming coming from my cabin.

I just don't see large numbers of people in Melbourne waking up. I'm sorry, but I think most here are too far gone. Its like they're in a hypnotic trance. The large majority support this fascism. They support what Andrews is doing because its keeping them 'safe'.

The cops in Victoria have always had a bad reputation, but what we've seen the last 5-6 months has been more akin to the Gestapo than anything else.

'Its like they're in a hypnotic trance.'

Not wishing to state the obvious but I think that is exactly what they're in. That is the whole point of trauma based mind control. Induce fear, paralysis and the inability to think. This is the reason for the continuous confusion from the media and induced panic and the vacuum created allows the govt to step in with 'the' solution. This is the very essence of the hegelian dialectic.

It is a very real technique and the only thing that can account for the large numbers of people behaving as they are. You see the same thing here in the UK. Large numbers of people walking round the streets, driving their cars all wearing masks. Why? Because they 'induced' to believe what they see through the media.

Once you outsource your ability to think which is really the role of the media plays, its mind numbing, hypnosis inducing programs, largely sold as 'entertainment' is able to provide the result. Once you become dependent on the media for 'entertainment' or distraction people don't realise they have become – dependent on the media.

Without wishing to be ironic its neatly captured in the movie 'shaun of the dead' with the zombie-fied populace behaving exactly as we are witnessing.

I've always richly admired Michael Caine in those Len Deighton novels. Big fan. And "Quiet American".

Sly name though, "Harry Palmer". A sardonic take on the spy industry.

I.P.C.R.E.S.S. said it all. Bored one Saturday matinee, I saw it alone at the local theatre as a lad of 12. 1964?

Little did I know then!

I would have gone into a programmable coma then, myself, if I had known my father was in essence lead attorney for the director of Project Monarch (mind control). One of many sobriquets for MKULTRA, West Coast (LA). I liked the Palmer fictive spins of the yarn much better, though: both father and director were later assassinated (old man in '82, director in '90).

Yes, Ripley's Believe It or Not.

£4£&$4$&€4€+MY2¢

*It fascinates me to no quench that I could find next to nothing on PROJECT Monarch for years (4) at every search engine, including duckduckgo, but only months ago I altered it on a hunch to OPERATION Monarch and hit a gold mine, a bonanza.

This is clearly a technique to bait the search, and have the plausible deniability so often used: "Google denies any and all censorship: you just didn't know how to search."

Ah, but the spookier sorts who have confessed to knowledge of it, at least on the street, ALWAYS use the first form, "PROJECT". Never the alternate, "Operation".

Devious and Crafty.

As in Spycraft.

BIBLE [BLACK (to quote Robert Fripp of King Crimson)] quote, scripturally speaking:

Drugs aren’t necessary. Most people vastly underestimate the power of Psychology. Behaviour Analysis, Behaviour Modification, and All aspects of Propaganda have been highly refined and tested over the last 100 years.

There is very little defence to it, except knowledge of it, and attempting to minimise exposure to it. Not watching TV is a great start.

It has been proven, that after watching TV for more than a minute or so, the brain switches to a different state, such that normal critical thinking is switched off. Of course some nonsense will be rejected, but underlying messages will be accepted, without being validated. Your brain is effectively being reprogrammed. Once this happens, arguing with people who have these beliefs ingrained has no effect whatsoever. They do not want to know, any real hard cold facts, that are contrary to their belief.

Hypnosis works too. It even worked on me, and I thought I would be immune to it.

“Hypnosis works too. It even worked on me, and I thought I would be immune to it.”

There is an assumption and misunderstanding about “hypnosis” and I’ve been trying to highlight it for several years, especially since I was myself waylaid for years about it.

Couch hypnosis or stage magicians hypnosis is vastly different from coercive hypnosis and trauma-based hypnosis.

If I'd understood the distinction I would have understood the Sirhan Hoax/Ruse (apologies, Charlotte) years ago, even at the time of the RFK murder in 1968.

It's spelled out clearly enough, graphically even (i.e. visually, cinematically) in Manchurian Candidate, both versions, but the remake with Denzel 15 years ago is superbly done by Demme.

Hence, Operation Monarch: (as in the exquisite butterfly) as your mind is morphed into their fluttering commodity.

It flutters and floats. It explains a whole lot about poor Sirhan, who was stabbed multiple times at 75 years old last year, most suspiciously, in his San Diego penitentiary. His mind has been on the long road back for decades.

Through prayer, raised as a Greek Orthodox Christian. He grew up in his boyhood in Taybeh, the last stop Jesus made for a retreat, 10 miles north of Jerusalem.

Perhaps the reason why Australians are having such a bad time of it is because they have remained quiet for so long. This has emboldened the talking heads in gov't posts into pushing their boundaries like never before.

Australia must be about the only country on earth that has yet to have a revolution.

Just supposing. Maybe another reason why Australia is under totalitarian lockdown is because of the shifting weather patterns caused by the solar minimum and the moving magnetic poles. This will devastate crops so maybe there is something far worse coming down the pipe for Australian's that the gov't has yet to announce to its people.

Maybe they won't. Maybe they will continue to tell everyone that a common cold is a worldwide pandemic and leave Australian's to face a desperate future with no preparation for what could be coming their way, courtesy of mother nature. It's a favourite trick of gov't propaganda to keep everyone looking for answers in the wrong direction.

When food supplies get dangerously low, the first thing gov't would do is declare martial law, ie: lockdown. This could be a walkthrough for this future possibility for which they will ramp up the violence and punishment. Humans will starve according to their ideology and gov'ts will let them.

The UK disgusts me at the moment. Repression is tightening.

It transpires a group of Quisling councils asked the UK Gov't to impose lockdown on the North East of England. Councils are supposed to look after people – not terrorise them.

This makes me wonder if the Government is offering cash incentives for lockdowns?

I only ask this seeming irrelevant question because I can't help wondering if lockdowns work best when the population is homogeneous. If so – and I think that's a reasonable assumption – that may help explain why both Australia and

New Zealand were targeted for the most draconian measures.

Good questions, I think it's comfortable with itself as both melting pot and multi cultural. Italians and Greeks etc own half the place (China the other half) so they would all laugh at 'anglo-saxon'.

But I think your assumption is right. Australia and NZ can safely be subject to extreme measures because the people here are so comfortable and law abiding. There is no fear of authority or police, they trust them. There is no angry underclass or minority. Melbourne is the most woke place in Oz. Woke kids believe they have rights and trust authority to be like their mummy. Only a completely deluded kid would expect you can refuse to wind down your window on police request. Anywhere.

Aboriginals regularly die in custody. The police and prison guards and regulators show no remorse and it goes on and on. . Steven Ward was driven hundreds of kilometers locked in the back of a van without air conditioning in the heat of summer and died. There was no BLM for him. I would very much doubt that police behaviour recently is anything new, it is just being applied to people who didn't expect it might be done to them.

What I don't understand is, why is Sydney AUS not experiencing the same level of brutality? Is it because we are not hearing about it?

level of authoritarianism will temporarily be reduced in a nod to the public, and to get some of the dissenters on board. Then it will be ramped up again with a bunch of new leaders, unsullied by the 'mistakes' of the past.

But society will break down very soon. Where is the tax base for social services, and hospitals and infrastructure repair? Gone, if there's no-one working, because we are all in virtual internment camps at home. Politicians have a short time in which they can bail but they'll simply be replaced by other puppets. The Corporations, the bankers and their technocratic thought leaders are in charge. They are hidden and much harder to reach and to challenge. That's why they're able to risk doing this.

We shall soon reach a critical mass and the world poulace will revolt. It's not a matter of voting out the bad guys. It will take other measures.

Human beings got us into this mess, but they (we) can also get us out of it. (But it will take vast effort and organisation, and commitment.)

The conspiracy theorist 'defense' is a very incriminating tactic. It helps to protect any and all possible conspiracies conducted by any factions. They could address the issue with scientific evidence but do not have any and thus resort to these tactics. Perhaps they are involved in all sorts of conspiracies such as rape, terrorism and child abuse and therefore use this incriminating "conspiracy theories" tactic to normalise disinfo tactics to defend the entire cult. This video on ritual abuse has some common themes with covid like that they do things that are designed to sound implausible so victims are not believed. That there is no such thing as covid19 sounds implausible but your not going to understand just how criminal these entities are if you believe in "the virus". They have literally been killing people and making them sick for decades on a massive scale with their fake health care system. There is massive crimes going back decades and what the "conspiracy theorists" have uncovered is the tip of the iceberg.

The checkerboard on the police hats. Freemasons. That explains why the police have always been so corrupt, so cowardly, thuggish, arrogant and sociopathic.

Now I understand why there was a child trafficking ring in the U.K. that was being protected by the police at the highest levels.

And it's why the police are involved in the drug trade and organized crime.

NZ also is in dire straits. When you think of what is happening, your head begins to spin.

It all happened so suddenly: we all got locked up in our respective countries, borders closed before we knew what was happening. Even those of us who knew things were getting worse over the decades, especially the last years, we never expected anything to this extent in our lives. We never expected anything like this ever really.

I remember the panic I felt when locked up in solitary confinement like the worst criminals with the prisoner's allocated 1 hr walk within a narrow perimeter: images of Nazi Germany rather than fascist Italy kept coming up. It seemed even worse, at least then you could move around, you could meet, you were never cut off from other humans. In fact I felt that prisoners were usually better off than us as they could do activities together, they could have meals together. Certainly we were not being shot at, not being physically tortured, at least not in the spring. But the psychological torture and the ban from going out (France had like Australia all these measures, except last spring they didnt yet have the coercive means they've now got) have equal deleterious effects. Just because these effects are less immediately visible, it doesnt make them less serious. In fact in the longer term, they can prove worse, because they are slowly destructive. Physical repression kills you rapidly and because its visible it can bring about opposition more rapidly too.

Anyhow we all missed the opportunity of putting an end to it last spring: if then people had massively descended on the streets, or even the 1000s or hundreds of 1000s who since then have had then immediately protested, we would not be where we are today: then they did not have the police force to beat us up. Its like with Hitler in January of 1933 when he became chancellor he did not have the coercive force needed, it took nearly 18 months to develop that. In the interim months, they did get rid of the active opposition: the camps were for the Left initially, the idea of using them for a genocide of Jews and others came later.

Still, Nazism could be implemented because before coercion was possible people either passively accepted the new norms, implemented them on each other, and even took actions that went beyond the rules. This your everyday person did. That is each of us individuals have a role in what happens. The very vast majority began to impose structural and behavioural changes within their spheres without being forced to do so. People in large numbers began to denounce one other. Some out of fear: fear is a terrible weapon. Others out of self-interest, out of conformism, the fear of what your neighbour will say, out of the desire for status since status is largely defined by having authorities say how good you are, thus out of the ambition of external success, the fear of losing their jobs and livelihoods, a large number because for them the law is the law, whatever the law says, and they don't realise that a coup d'état need not have tanks on the streets like in Spain in 1936, but a coup d'état consists of a change of legislation permitting repression.

Is this not what is now happening again? Like then, headmasters and teachers are doing precisely that in their schools.

And even many among the few who understand are remaining quiet: what can I do? If I speak out, even to my colleagues, I may lose my job, and who knows may be denounced, arrested, and what good will it do?

We should be first very honest with ourselves if we now wish a return to human life. It's human to fear doing something in times like this, it's human to fear speaking out. Also among those of us who are speaking out, our motivations for speaking out may be not all that pure. That is something I have very much experienced in the last few years: I have found among the mainstream, notably the mainstream elites, a greater honesty: as long as you think like them, as long as you are loyal to the official doctrine, believe me talent is rewarded, loyalty is rewarded, you find help and support all along the road. In one word, they are united. I had thought that those who have been fighting to maintain human values, who have been at the forefront of many battles" in my lifetime, would be united by these values, all the more so because we are so few, that there would be mutual help, mutual support. Well I can tell you I was greatly disappointed. There was none of the camaraderie I had thought there would be, on the contrary no one helped one other: it was rather a competition to establish oneself as an adulated critic with a following.

All this to say: we too should be honest with ourselves and do some soul searching. We are each one of us responsible for not having been able to stop this utter dystopia happening. If we can be honest first with ourselves, then possibly we can rise to the occasion, and at last unite and successfully bring back the freedoms we have lost, at last bring back the possibility to merely live. Time is against us: the longer we allow this to unroll, the harder it will become and the higher the number of victims. Sure Nazi Germany is no more, and humanity survived, but millions of lives were destroyed. This time too humanity will ultimately survive, but there will be uncountable numbers of victims the longer it lasts. Is this what we want?

Great name, and great comment.

Please be honest with yourself and realise that you, like us all, are victims. Do not blame yourself, or anyone else. This thing was sprung upon us so fast, although the neocon sociopaths have been fine-tuning it for years..

In martial arts training, you are trained to sense and to be aware of all dangerous situations. Only Then, you may have a chance of blocking or countering an attack.

Without that training (and constant reinforcement of that awareness through training,) the punch or kick, or strike, comes out of no-where, and just decks you. (or worse)

Within the Empire, support for a conspiracy "theory" now demonstrates mental illness. Since around 2008, leaders in the Empire, UK and France have described those who question "official and popular explanations" of major events as "potential terrorists" [Kevin Barrett 2015; Whitney Webb 2019]. This conveys the implied threat that enforcers will "restrain" such a dissident "pre-emptively"; this is despite official claims that turned out to be false, such as [Paul Roberts 2019]

- the weapons of "mass" destruction in Iraq
- the "moderate rebels" in Syria, and the government using chemical weapons
- Iranian nuclear weapons
- Russian invasion of Ukraine
- the expected genocide in Libya by its government.

That's the court process they used against Sophie School, that she and the White Rose we're giving aid and comfort to the enemy, by denouncing Hitler. They tread very lightly with her, the eponymous fine film 15 years ago shows they gave her many opportunities to recant, but despite all the ploys she went to her death by beheading. (Her judge a year later was crushed under a pillar of his courthouse a year later, Roland Freisler.)

Same with Bonhoeffer. Himmler had him hanged only in April of '45 just days before the Russians took Berlin, without charges ever being brought, even though he had denounced Hitler —when he was 24!!— on German radio in early 1933, a few days after Hitler had, ahem, seized control.

They tread lightly, concerned about delayed blowback.

Same as FBI did with Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. They refused to dance to the McCarthy tune. Paid with their heads instead (well told in film "Heir to an Execution").

Here they are brooking global blowback, but they have formidable media of all tech.

Here's a ditty of 1980 about such things, I croon it to Melbourne:

"Better shine your spirit
When Dark begins to fall.
You're not up against a lot.
You're up against a Wall.

Shine your spirit now,
Don't be misunderstood.
World War Three is happening
For everybody's good."

This is an interesting story about a state in the USA that didn't submit to Covid fear and panic. It seems to me that many other states in the USA (where I live) and many other places in the world would do better to take lessons from what is reported in this story. But of course, few will pay attention.

South Dakota: America's Sweden

Amelia Janaskie

– September 17, 2020

Most people know South Dakota for the distinguished faces carved onto the side of the Black Hills mountain. Mount Rushmore reminds us of four American leaders who instilled values of freedom and hope in this country.

These values are under attack in our tumultuous coronavirus days. Lockdowns have assaulted core values that we believed were sacrosanct: property rights, in the right to run a business; freedom of association and movement, in the right to travel, gather, work, consume, have fun, and so on. In short, the right to pursue happiness.

Under the leadership of South Dakota Governor Kristi Noem, however, the Great Plains state has effected a fortress of liberty and hope protected from the grasps of overbearing politicians. And interestingly enough, South Dakota policies echo many of the same values and approaches as Sweden, and both have uncoincidentally experienced positive outcomes.

I've been doing the non-compliance thing. I sat in front of a local market tonight gathering signatures and had no mask. Everyone going in the store wore a mask but had no problem with me, and I got signatures. Well, there is one crazy woman who shows up and starts shouting at me in my masklessness, screaming and yelling. "He's got no mask!" Like a priceless pod. Raving. Each time she complained to the manager, to no avail. The store ignored her, and she has a rep anyway. I told her to call the cops. They have seen me several times the past month and espouse maximum indifference.

I got banned from the local YMCA, they are a real petri dish, the pattern is clear: the other gyms, some large, are local franchises, but the Y is international, an old institution, nearly everywhere.

That's significant, since they have a plethora now of the most anal rules. Another gym chain re-opened last weekend and now at 5am weekdays, their old opening. But the Y opens two hours later than pre-covid 1984, now at 7, and closes also at 7, whereas my new gym closes at 9p.

Then the Y closes 1p to 2p for an hour of deep cleaning...

What? During operation, they have young masked workers circling the equipment ceaselessly to wipe and spray. It is such a ceremony, I'm surprised to not see them polishing invisible equipment in the air, like a Marcel Marceau mime routine, it's that bizarre, visually: walking up and down aisles between treadmills and climbers with cloths and sprayers, in perpetual motion.

But there's little uniformity between franchises. The Y lets you take off masks once you enter, but my gym wants them on most of the time... That wasn't so last month.

The nuttiness is never-ending, but why Melbourne is doffing the checkered caps to New Normal Nazism is an interesting question.

A writer here the other day said it's hard not to see something contrived.

Even more so than that connection, it's hard not to see instant interconnectivity between events being covered all over the planet.

I stopped off at McDonald's for a coffee. One mgr. wears a covid-themed T shirt. On the front was that vacuous bromide, "We are all in this together." Then on the back side a chilling corporate slap, "Keep calm. Wash your hands "

To any normal conspiracy theorist, that comes off as mockery.

This is exactly the game, I reckon. Manipulation everywhere you look—the economy's taken its greatest dive ever and what have we got: house prices and shares near record levels. Polls assuring us the people love their governments.

But lift the carpet and every government indicator from inflation to unemployment is a known fraud and has been for decades. You've got publicly declared plans to manipulate the U.S. November elections; including paying influencers to support politicians, plans to manipulate the postal vote, and for Biden to refuse to concede, regardless of the voters' vote. (See Transition Integrity Project and Hawkfish.)

The UK had a series of strongly suspicious by-elections, followed by the dubious 2019 Tory landslide... and, yes, it was the postal votes.

Why wouldn't they fix polls and the media to give the impression that the vast majority are complying – even if they weren't? (though sadly, I think most are.)

As the military is running the media and behavioural insight teams are tailoring policy on a daily basis – it would be no more complex to manipulate the opinion polls to tell you that 95% of the people are behind the government.

In fact, it's an obvious and essential first step from their perspective.

Right. Yet even more ironic well, alarming really, is that most of the compliant, enslaved masked zombies who adore Andrews, wouldn't know, or care that during the 1918 pandemic, not even one country, let alone the whole world was locked-down, nor did any nation impose any of the oppressive abuses of our God-given freedom and basic human rights they've imposed on us now, during that REAL (influenza) pandemic. And, everyone including our societies and global economy (apart from a bit of hiccup in the late 1920's through to the 1940's), survived right up until now. It didn't cause extinction of humanity, or anything even remotely close.

No country, never mind the whole world, has EVER been shutdown for ANY reason, throughout our entire history as a species. Yet these fools don't even give this a second's thought. Don't question any of it, just comply like dumbed-down, obedient sheep, all gleefully following in lockstep to the bizarre 'new normal', of dehumanizing face mask mandates and 'social distancing' edicts, which they seem to embrace. What on Earth is the matter with these Galahs? If they don't wake up soon, we're all finished! We'll never know freedom again and nor will they.

Yet in stark contrast to 1918: today, they're literally annihilating everything, ruining many millions of lives and livelihoods in an absurdly overzealous and illogical response to a virus which has already been shown statistically, to be no more 'deadly' than a typical outbreak of the seasonal flu, which we see and many of us become infected with, every year; and which also infiltrates all countries and has killed many more people than this so-called 'covid-19' bug.

In Australia, many more have died this year already of influenza and even from rare skin diseases, than this relatively minor upper respiratory tract infection they dubbed 'covid-19' to make it sound utterly terrifying.

Covid-19 is more of an hysterical fear campaign, propagated by the UN /

WHO & WEF, controlled mainstream media, than it is a 'deadly' disease. It doesn't even qualify as an epidemic, let alone pandemic.

Today one of the old women who died in St Basils supposedly from covid was said to have died of abuse and neglect, I would bet they all fucking did. As I have been saying since the beginning it's a nothing virus and locking up all the old and sick kills them, they die of frigging loneliness and abuse, terrible food, lack of a damn drink of water yet still stupid Melbournians are still spruiking for Fabulous Dan and the incomprehensibly stupid Brett Sutton and still claiming that two healthy people in a room can make someone sick with this mysterious new symptomless disease.

The biggest shock is the number of human rights lawyers who defend this crap, men like Julian Burnside who I know for many years now, Thank heaven's he didn't make it to the senate, he would sell out rights in a nanosecond. I looked for the variable from the rest of the world and Victoria, the answer, Dan outsourced to the Twiggy\Gates Chinese tests.

The Greens here in Victoria actually voted for the extension of the state of emergency, along with Fiona Patten and Andy Meddick of the Animal Justice Party. They wanted more of this fascism. Horror stories are trickling out from the nursing homes, old people left in soiled clothing for 3-4 days, others not being fed for a couple of days, abusive staff, residents left to suffer with injuries and bruising, and refused to see any family. Its completely sickening. Of course nearly all the deaths are in nursing homes. And that so many here think the sun shines out of Andrews bum and fully comply without blinking. I have never loathed such a place so much. Ever. When I do force myself to go out, I won't even make eye contact with anyone. I just walk round with this seething anger inside.

I have been seething with rage about the murder of old pple, the abuse is appalling and even friends who thought I was exaggerating are now seeing the truth. I don't give a flying fig if people are at end of life, they deserve some respect. When I was nursing at Julia Farr years ago I sat with a former Adelaide University as she died from Huntington's, they said she wouldn't know I was there but some part of her destroyed brain certainly did. It was a shocking way for a 24 year old to spent half a nursing shift but I flatly refused to leave her.

Yet in Victoria, they are left to rot, then they call it covid and the pricks get away with the abuse with the complicity of Dan and the horrible, horrible Brett Sutton.

Care home deaths caused by neglect are being labelled 'Covid' deaths around the world. A mass crime covered up by lies.

I agree about the Greens. I saw through them a long time ago.

You'd suspect he's caught between a rock and a hard place, but he could have just resigned and been a hero of the Age. Lukashenko shows grit, God bless that empire-defier.

When will enough be enough? When liberals and conservatives in the west finally get affected they will be penning "at first they came for the anti maskers..." poems. Then and only then will they give a fuck.
