

The Targeted Assassination of Studies Showing Vaccines Cause Injury

Since they can't win on the merits, they've resorted to other tactics

A journalist from The Guardian recently contacted me for a comment on vaccine-related studies I have previously cited in my work. The publishers of these studies decided—years after publication—that these studies were so flawed and “dangerous to public health” that they needed to be retracted or investigated. The journalist wanted to know if I would amend my book and my recent ACIP presentation now that these studies were under attack.

My response:

“I welcome the media noting the targeted assassination of articles that do not support the religious belief of vaccine proponents; this is also exemplified by the medi lack of interest in the hundreds of other articles, reviews, and trial documents my book and ACIP presentation which make plain that the claim vaccines are and effective' is not supported by the available evidence.”

So which studies are under fire? You won't be surprised that they are on some of biggest hot-button topics when it comes to vaccine injury:

1. REMOVED: Vaccines and sudden infant death: An analysis of the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System \(VAERS\) database 1990–2019 and review of the medical literature (Neil Miller, 2021). This study has not just been retracted—it has been removed. Completely wiped. This is reserved for only the most egregious publication offenses. Elsevier says it found “serious methodological flaws” and that the paper poses potential risks to public health.” Author Neil Miller explains their concerns “either insignificant or plainly incorrect.” He has shared his emails with Elsevier publicly, so you can be the judge. A copy of the study can still be found here.

2. RETRACTED: Hepatitis B Vaccination of Male Neonates and Autism Diagnosis NHIS 1997–2002 (Carolyn Gallagher & Melody Goodman, 2010). This paper was published sixteen years ago. Sixteen years. And only now was it retracted after the publisher claimed that “due to fundamental methodological flaws the study’s conclusions are unsound.” The authors stand behind the study and noted “many recent criticisms of the paper are consistent with what we recognized and noted time.”

3. UNDER INVESTIGATION: Analysis of health outcomes in vaccinated and unvaccinated children: Developmental delays, asthma, ear infections and gastrointestinal disorders (Brian Hooker & Neil Miller, 2020). This study now has “expression of concern” attached to it that says the study is “under investigation. Miller stated that the investigation has to do with false allegations that the data came from another source and was not disclosed.

4. UNDER INVESTIGATION: Quantification of residual plasmid DNA and SV40 promoter-enhancer sequences in Pfizer/BioNTech and Moderna mRNA COVID-19 vaccines from Ontario, Canada (David Speicher, Jessica Rose, & Kevin McKernan)

2025). The publisher may regret kicking the hornet's nest on this one. Rose and McKernan have been posting regularly about their study, their conversations with the publisher, and how it turns out the person trying to get their study retracted is apparently one of the study's original peer reviewers and who also happens to have received funding from the same German organization, Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft, that provided substantial funding to BioNTech. Go figure.

Behind each of these attacks is a plain desire to wipe from the record any evidence of vaccine harm and to chill the publication of any future studies that report vaccine harm.

Every scientist who values scientific integrity should publicly denounce these tactics. Anything less is not science. It is ideology.

This is why you save hard copies of every study. Criminals do not follow rules and they will wi crime scene.

Truth is treason in an empire of lies and the farther a society drifts from it, the more they will those who speak it.
